Science Changes, Truth Does Not.

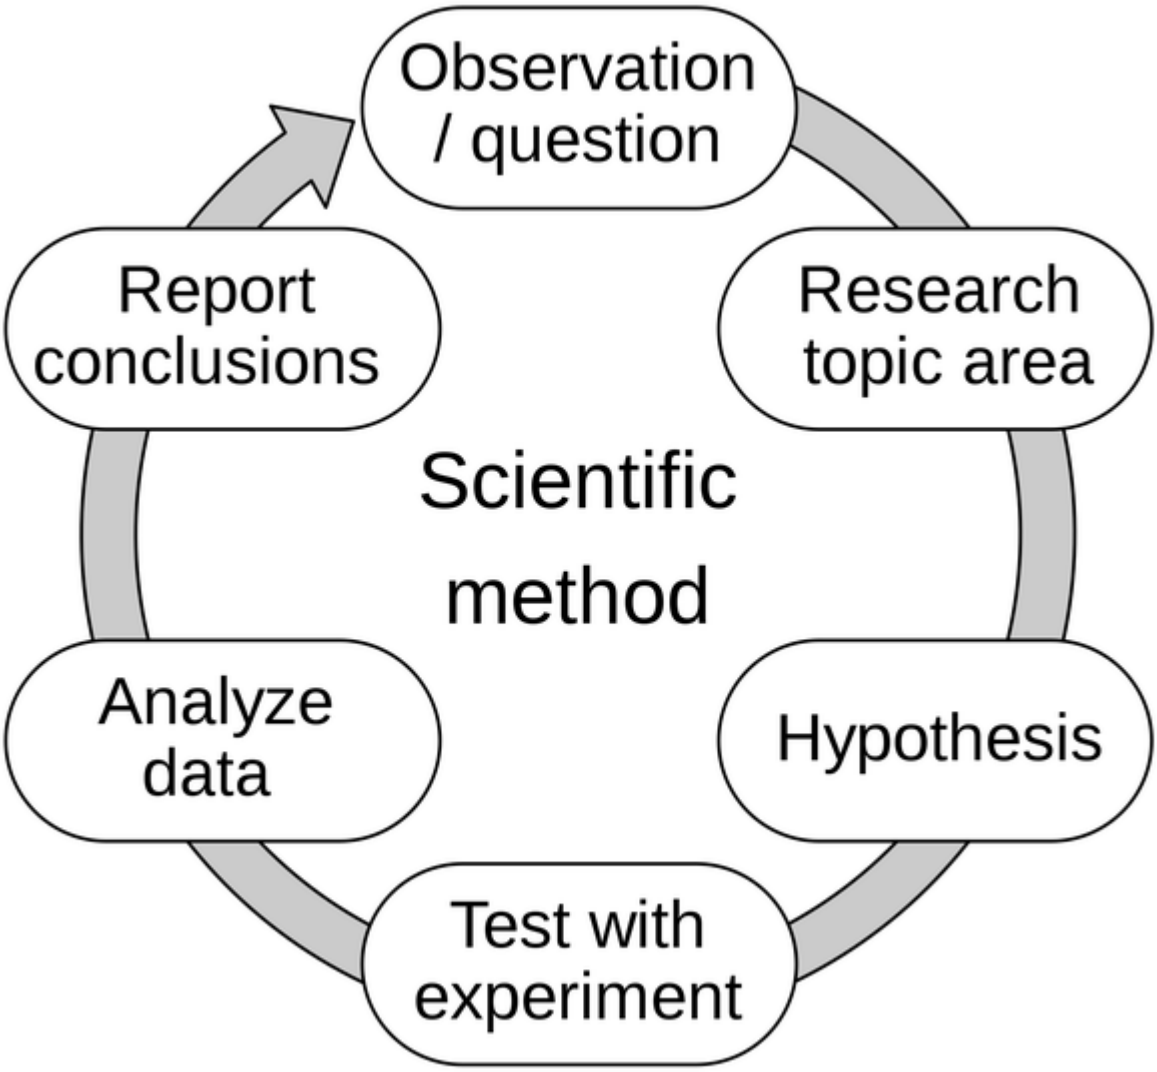

SCIENCE CHANGES, TRUTH DOES NOT

The problem with all the sciences is that their conclusions are always in flux. Scientists in all the various disciplines are constantly changing, updating, or refining their conclusions on what is true.

The real truth is always the same, never changing, never evolving or updating. Truth is timeless.

This is why science and scientists have led the world astray. They base their explanations of the universe, its history, and everything in it on their collective research.

They are like blind men trying to explain how and why the color red is red. They were not there when God created the heavens and the Earth so they are trying to reverse-engineer everything without acknowledging even the possibility of a Creator. They eliminate the correct answer before they begin their research thus making it impossible for them to be right in their conclusions.

What science concludes to be true is drawn from hypotheses, observation, testing, gathering data, theorizing, repeating the process, and then accepting or rejecting those theories.

Once a theory is proven, peer-reviewed, and accepted the result becomes scientific fact and is added to the scientific view of the universe.

This is how the current paradigm has been created. Their view of our universe is created through postulation, observation, experimentation, examination of data, and conclusion. But what if we are not asking the right questions? They begin by posing a question, i.e. postulation. But if they are not asking the right questions how can we trust any of the findings?

You see, science has no fundamental truth to build upon. It has no single point from which to begin. It has no true foundation and in fact, is nothing more than a construct.

So here we find ourselves, teaching our children a paradigm of nonsense. Condemning future generations to lives filled with the confusion of misinformation. It is the very reason people go through life never understanding what is going on in their lives and why things happen to them.

Truth is what is missing. The truth about everything. Not what the world teaches as truth, but what God has spoken.

At this point, a dishonest man will scoff. I say dishonest because the truth is that everyone alive today and everyone who has ever lived believes in God whether they admit it or not. Their concept of who God is, his nature, and characteristics, may vary widely. Nevertheless, anyone who claims that they don't believe in a God who created the heavens and the earth is lying. They either lie to themself, or to others, or both.

I will expound on that statement in my post titled Without Excuse.

Suffice to say this:

Science without a foundation of truth upon which to build is unstable, unreliable, and untrustworthy.

Science without the constraints of a framework of truth cannot differentiate between scientific conclusions that are fact and scientific conclusions that are fiction.

In this generation, Science has been placed on a pedestal that it is not worthy of. As a result, we teach our children lies, not willingly, but because we foolishly put our trust in science.

A young man once came to speak with Jesus and said "Good Master, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life? And Jesus said unto him, Why do you call me good? there is none good but one, that is, God."
